FALL TERM A BOOMER

All Departments Still Receiving Unusual Numbers of New Students
—Several Brilliant Events Mark the New Term.

The excess of students over the enrollment of previous years has been steadily gaining since the first day, and now amounts to about 150. The Normal and Vocational Departments are proving more popular than ever, though all departments show a good increase.

The Literary Societies met on Friday night, and while students who graduated last spring were missed, the attendance was large and the programs were well carried out.

The first Saturday was marked by a reception in the men's dormitories. Though the time for preparation was short the dormitories were in good condition and the occasion highly enjoyed. In Persons Hall there was a brief and bright literary program.

The new arrangement of divided chapel Sunday night has not been thoroughly understood by citizens. Brother Roberts preached in the Upper Chapel to the College students and the advanced members of the Normal and Academy Departments, his subject being "What it means to be a Christian." Prof. Raine preached on "The Call of Abraham" in the Main Chapel, which was fairly full except the side galleries, the citizens entirely filling the west banks of seats.

New students and others were much entertained by a number of moving

STOP AND LOOK

A few days ago a subscriber, after receiving notice of the expiration of his subscription, came into the office and apologized for his neglect by saying that he was always so anxious to read the paper that he did not think to look at the label on the wrapper, or on the upper left hand margin of the first page, to see when his time was out.

That was a most pleasing excuse—so interested in the contents that he forgot the label. We forgave him, of course, and will as readily forgive all others that have the same or as good an excuse, but this issue we are trying to make the LABEL so conspicuous that it will be the first thing seen.

So we are asking every subscriber to stop just here and look up as directed by the  to see how he or she stands with us. We keep open books with every one either on the margin above or, in case there are too few subscribers at a place to make a bundle, on the wrapper; but this week we are stamping all alike as indicated by the large .

Now what is your standing? Suppose that after your name you find this date, 15 SEP. '11. That means that your subscription was out last week, and that we are due from you one of three things—the money for the renewal of your subscription, a letter telling us when we may expect it, or a letter saying that we may stop sending the paper to you.

We have heard from only two or three people in the last year who do not like The Citizen and that leads us to believe that our subscribers are our friends, but of course we know who our best friends are—those who do not put us to the trouble of writing them two or three letters in order to get their renewal, or those who do not wait still longer till "Honest Ned" comes around.

And that reminds us. We have recently heard of a number of persons who paid no attention to the COIN CARDS sent them, saying, "What is the use? I'll just wait till the agent comes along and pay him."

These people forget that our agents have enough to do hunting new subscribers, and they forget something else very important—when they force us to send an agent to them, a good portion of the DOLLAR they mean to give us to make The Citizen better has to go to the AGENT.

Are we not justified then in making this plea—this plea for friendship, a friendship that is willing to help a little—willing to do its part, willing to save us trouble and expense, willing to liberate us for the larger duties that the paper requires?

Then will not our readers Stop and Look and then Help? If the date is 15 SEP. '11 or before, something is due us. If it is later than that the Subscription is paid up.

What is the record?

THE BLIGHT OF SELFISHNESS

"Why, Dr. ———!"

"Doctor, let me introduce you to my brother, John."

"John, this is Dr. ——— about whom I have been telling you, and about whom there has been so much in the papers of late."

"I am very glad to meet you, Doctor, and I want to commend you for the great work you are doing. Indeed, I think there is no one that is putting the state so greatly in his debt."

Now we knew the Doctor, and were walking with him when the above dialogue occurred. Of course, we hardly need to say that he was not a Doctor in reality. That is only the name that we give him for convenience. But we, too, were crediting him with doing a great work until, a few moments later, becoming confidential, he gave him self away.

"Do you know, I don't care a blamed thing for this whole business. What do I care for Kentucky? It is only a meat and bread problem with me—meat and bread after while. There isn't much in it now. I am doing this work solely for the notoriety—the advertising it gives me, and I am getting it. I have worked the thing pretty well. I am getting offers already from other states, and I shall soon leave this job."

What an alarming confession! We soon separated from the "Doctor," and there was feeling that it would not be a cause of grief never to meet him again.

And then we began to muse: How far are the actions of men—and women—controlled by selfishness? The politician offers himself for office because he is burning with a desire to serve his county, his district, his state—his fellow men. Does he, or is it bread and meat, graft, advertisement of self that he seeks? The teacher—is it meat and bread, a stepping stone with him? The minister, the missionary—is it the name and fame—the better church, the fear of punishment, the hope of reward that impels? But surely the soldier will escape. There can be no selfishness in the unknown grave. Maybe not, and yet the ambitious might be willing to risk the unknown grave.

The blight of selfishness—how far reaching it is one may never know! Notoriety, self-advertisement for mercenary reasons; not work for the love of it, for the good of it; not the hand of relief for pity's sake; not helpfulness moved by a tenderness of heart.

Let every one examine his own heart first and then cry out for the rocks and the mountains to fall upon him if the "Doctor's" confession expresses his own guilt.

IMPORTS OF COTTON

It seems strange to see the greatest cotton producing country of the world bringing raw cotton half way around the globe and importing it for use in her own manufacturing industries. It is nevertheless a fact that the United States, which produces practically two-thirds of the world's cotton, imported during the last fiscal year 1910 and 1911 118,769,313 pounds, valued at $24,776,320.

IT PAID SAM

Sam was brought up in the country; that means he was brought up to work.—Not a bad thing for Sam either. But his father would drink and that was not a good thing for Sam, as his father kept him at work when he should have been at school.

However, his father taught him the carpenter's trade, and at twenty Sam had built a very respectable house and was caring for his mother after his father's death.

Sam never forgot that there was much that he needed to know. So at twenty-one years of age he came to school. Strong, hearty, tipping the scales at 175 pounds. Sam was good to look upon. Best of all he was

STUDENTS

All students with $10.00 or more surplus money are invited to bring it to the Berea Bank and Trust Company for safe keeping.

It is not safe to keep money in your rooms.

All students with a Bank Account at home will find it much more convenient to transfer it to this bank while in school.

We can not cash strangers' checks without identification. Besides it means cost and trouble for the bank to collect so many foreign checks.

For further advice call at the bank.

We are your friends and will welcome your acquaintance.

O'REAR IN MOUNTAINS

Judge O'Rear spoke in London, Monday, to a large audience. This was the beginning of his campaign in the mountain district. After his speech he went on horse-back to Manchester where he was to address the voters, Tuesday. The London meeting meant more than a mere gathering of the voters to hear a political speech. It was a meeting of the leaders to perfect an organization for the remainder of the campaign. Langley, Powers and Edwards were present and it was agreed to open headquarters for the mountains at Barbourville. Announcement was also made that Bradley would make his first speech in the campaign at Ashland, Sept. 27th. It is expected that the mountains will give O'Rear from 30,000 to 35,000 majority.

ELLIS CONVICTED

James Ellis was convicted in the Puiaski Circuit Court for the murder of Magistrate A. J. Beatty at Burnside some weeks ago, and sentenced to death. Fount Heiton who was indicted along with Ellis will probably be tried also at this term of the court. Ellis and Heiton are also charged with the murder of Constable W. F. Heath at the same time.

GIFT TO STATE UNIVERSITY

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of the University of Kentucky, last Saturday, decided to accept the gift from the Peabody Fund of $40,000, on the condition demanded by the directors of the fund that not only the income be used to advance the department of education of the University, but that an additional sum from the revenues of the board, which would make the entire expenditure for that purpose $10,000 per year, be appropriated.

CROPS NOT SO BAD

The favorable weather of the last month has led to a revision of the crop estimate for Kentucky. It was reported before the breaking up of the drought that the crops would be cut short 50 per cent. But it is believed now that they will be at least 3/4 as good as last year and they may be even better than that.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

Election on in Canada—The President Pleading for Support of His Policies—Wiley to Stay at Post—Representative Madison Dies—A Dastardly Deed—“Wet or Dry”

CANADA VOTES TODAY

After weeks of campaigning and speech making, the vote which shall decide whether the reciprocity agreement over which our Congress fought so long will be adopted by the Canadians is being taken today. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Premier, like President Taft, has been the chief advocate of the measure, and the indications are that the liberal majority will be sufficient to make the passage of the agreement an easy matter in the new parliament.

FIGHTING FOR HIS POLICIES

President Taft has entered strenuously upon his great campaign—a fifteen thousand mile trip through the west—the purpose of which is to create public sentiment in favor of his policies. He has already made a number of speeches. The first of importance at the state fair in New York, the next before the Chamber of Commerce, Detroit. The New York speech was non-political being a plea for better farming methods, conservation, etc. At Detroit he launched into a defense of the Sherman Anti-trust law and the trust decisions of the Supreme Court, answering the court's critics as well as his own and declaring against any revision of the law. In one of the speeches he also pled for the adoption of the arbitration treaties by the Senate, and suggested a concession to the Senate which may be valuable in securing their support.

WILEY VINDICATED

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, pure food expert of the Bureau of Chemistry in the Department of Agriculture, who was recommended for dismissal by the Attorney-General after reviewing the action of the committee of the Department, was exonerated by President Taft in a letter to the Department just before he began his western tour. The President has no word of criticism for Dr. Wiley but much of praise for his stand against the food adulterators. A sentence in his letter on the other hand is ominous for the Department as it indicates as the result of investigations now in progress that there may be a complete reorganization. It is thought that Secretary Wilson himself will have to step down and out.

INSURGENT LEADER DEAD

Representative Madison of Kansas, one of the strongest personalities among the insurgents who figured in the last two sessions of Congress, died suddenly at his home at Dodge City, Kan., the 18th. He was stricken with heart failure at breakfast and died without being able to speak. It will be remembered that he figured prominently in the Ballinger case, having voted with the Democrats to unseat the Secretary. At the time of his death he was preparing to meet President Taft on his western tour.

RUSSIAN PREMIER SHOT

Premier Stolypin was shot by an assassin, Thursday night, the 14th, while in company with the Czar and many nobles attending a gala performance at a theatre. The deed was an unusually treacherous one, since the assassin had gained entrance on the pretext of friendship, declaring that it was his purpose to protect the Premier inasmuch as he knew personally many of those from whom mischief might be expected. For a few days it was thought the Premier would live, but peritonitis set in and (Continued on eighth Page)

Many a man boasts that he is "self-made" when he ought to do his best to keep it a secret.

About the only strings on the human kite are the pull of gravity and the rules of the aviation meet.

The new way of proposing is this: "I don't like your last name." If the girl agrees to this it is all settled.

American men should prevent women from entering business life, says a doctor. Just let them try it!

A highbrow tells us that there is poetry in bean. But the chunk of pork that goes with it is quite prosy.

Eating corn on the cob may not be the most dignified pastime in the world, but, by gosh, it's real sport!

Big liners and tall skyscrapers are soon outdone, and then they fall back and are forgotten in the rank and file.

Brass bands and vaudeville stars have failed to draw worshipers to a Chicago church. Why not try religion?

We see by the papers that a girl in Long Branch danced herself to death. She had probably remarked: "I could just die waiting!"

A man in Cincinnati offers to sail himself to the highest bidder, thereby placing himself on a level with European nobility.

Speaking once again of the flight of time, is there anything that flies more slowly than the week immediately following your vacation?

There's one born every minute. A Cleveland girl complains to the police that she was persuaded to hand a gypsy fortune teller $150.

"The forehead," says Lillian Russell, "should not be too high." Great Scott! Are they going to switch the forehead about like the waist line?

There is nothing new in the report that the human aura has been discovered. It has often been used as a costume by our classical dancers.

It is against the law to wear a dead bird on one's hat in New Jersey, but the milliners may be depended upon to concoct something just as costly.

Chinese authorities have spent $100,000 in furnishing a class room for their 6-year-old emperor and providing imperial textbooks. Poor little kid!

There's a tribe in Africa, under German domination, where the men eat their wives. This is a little more disgraceful than ordinary divorce, but it saves alimony.

Nevertheless, we refuse to believe that the man who went over Niagara Falls in a barrel could drop 1,000 feet from an aeroplane and escape death, even if he used his barrel.

A writer in a Chicago newspaper says that no real-life lovemaking is like that which the novelists describe. It may be, however, that the novelists describe it as it should be.

A New York woman thinks she is going to solve the servant problem by importing Filipino girls. Probably she will find before long that she has merely added another side to it.

A shoe merchant tells us that women's feet and brains are becoming larger. Possibly he is misled by the fact that women have developed enough brains to buy shoes that fit.

In the war against the fly the most quiet hopes to escape unnoticed. But success in the extermination of the one will stimulate the fight against the other, so the disturbed of our slums need not hum the louder in anticipated safety.

A legitimate outlet has at length been found for the surplus vacation energy of the small boy. He is flying, and the community and the home circle are doubly rejoiced.

ORPHAN BRIGADE HOLDS REUNION

DURING PAST YEAR DEATH HAS REMOVED THIRTY-FIVE OLD SOLDIERS.

GEN. BUCKNER MAKES ADDRESS

Collages and Schools Open—Poultry Building Appropriation Will Be Asked of Legislature—Tax Funds Reach High-Water Mark.

Louisville.—More than 75 survivors of the Orphan brigade, famed for their services in the civil war, gathered at the Confederate home at Pewee Valley for the 28th annual reunion of the brigade and the meeting of the Kentucky division, United Confederate Veterans. There were present over 200 veterans, including the Orphan brigade members, who revived in song and speech the spirit of the confederacy.

Conspicuous among the old soldiers was Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, 89 years of age, former governor of Kentucky, and organizer of the Orphan brigade 50 years ago.

Honored Guests.—Col. Otho Hayden, of Franklin, Simpson county, who fought at the side of Gen. Haldeman during the war, attended the exercises and was the guest of his old comrade, Mrs. Ben Hardin Helm, widow of a hero of Chickamauga, and two daughters also honored guests, as well as Adj't Gen. P. P. Johnston and Gen. W. J. Stone, of Mayfield, commander of the Second Kentucky brigade.

Col. Osborne read the names of the members who had been taken away by death since the 1910 reunion at Frankfort. There were 35 who did not answer the roll call.

To Write War History.—At Col. Osborne's suggestion Gen. Buckner was requested to write a history of the civil war, of which, it was said, he knew more than any living person. An invitation was extended to the brigade to hold its next meeting at Bardstown, but the selection of time and place was referred to the executive committee.

Elections of the various brigades were held and Gen. Rogers was chosen to head the First brigade; Gen. George B. Taylor, of Nicholasville, was elected commander of the Fourth, and Gen. F. P. Barnard, of Louisville, was re-elected commander of the Third brigade. Gen. Stone commander of the Second brigade, announced that its election would be held at Mayfield at the annual meeting.

DATE OF KENTUCKY PRESS ASSOCIATION MEETING SET.

Louisville.—The midwinter meeting of the Kentucky Press association will be held here December 28 and 29, this date having been decided upon at a meeting of the executive committee.

Shelton M. Saufley, of Stanford, secretary of the committee, was authorized to send out the official call to the members of the association. Those who attended the meeting of the committee were Col. W. B. Haldeman, president of the association; E. D. Shinnick, Shelbyville; G. J. Alcock, Jefferson; John R. Lawrence, Cadiz; John B. Gaines, Bowling Green, and John B. Stearns, Nicholasville.

CORNER STONE LAID.

Mr. Sterling.—The corner stone of the Mt. Sterling public building was laid on Thursday, September 21, with appropriate exercises. The Masonic lodge had charge of the exercises and Mr. Robert H. Burnam, state grand master, of Richmond, laid the stone.

The principal address was delivered by Congressman John W. Langley, who is credited with the erection of the building.

Louisville.—J. S. Woods, president of the defunct Franklin bank, filed suit against William M. Duffy, attorney for the depositor who caused Woods' arrest, asking $25,000 damage of the lawyer and alleging libel.

Shelbyville.—Rev. Dr. Frank M. Thomas, presiding elder of the Louisville district of the M. E. church, South, delivered the address at the opening of the 87th annual session of Science Hill.

The boarding department of the school, which is limited to 50, is full and the attendance of day pupils larger than for several years.

BOTTLERS HEAR ADDRESS ON PURE FOOD LAWS.

Members of State Association Also Attend Fair.

Louisville.—Although the Kentucky State Bottlers' association has a membership of only two score, the opening session of the annual convention of the organization was attended by 53 men. Mayor Head and R. W. Brown extended the welcome of the city to the delegates and invited them to come next year.

Dr. Vernon Roberts delivered an address on the importance of keeping bottles clean, and on pure food laws.

The sum of about $600 was realized by the auctioning off of a large quantity of extracts which had been donated by the manufacturers. The money will be used to defray the expenses of the convention and for the furtherance of the purposes of the association.

Somerset.—After deliberating for three hours the jury which has been trying James Ellis, charged with the murder of Magistrate A. J. Beatty, returned a verdict of guilty in the first degree and fixed the punishment of the prisoner at death.

Ellis was also charged with the murder of Constable W. F. Heath. The shooting took place in the court room at Burnside.

Ferguson.—Tom Pulley, a farmer, was loading a .38-caliber pistol when it was accidentally discharged, the ball striking his two-year-old daughter in the right shoulder and coming out underneath the breast bone. The child is not expected to recover.

Carlisle.—Fire, originating from a defective kitchen stove, completely destroyed the residence of D. M. Plummer, a leading business man here, together with almost all of his household goods. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

NEW HIGH BRIDGE IS OPENED TO TRAFFIC

The Highest Structure Which Spans a Navigable Stream on the Entire American Continent.

The New High Bridge Across the Kentucky River.

Danville.—High bridge, which spans the Kentucky river on the Queen & Crescent route, was thoroughly tested out last week and formally opened to traffic. It is the highest bridge spanning navigable stream on the American continent and is said to be the most massive structure of its length.

In laying the double track across the bridge 140,000 pounds of steel rails and 2,000 cross ties were used, the span being 1,223 feet in length. Picture

HANDY ANTI-KICKING DEVICE

Cow's Legs Strapped to Strong Stick Will Keep Animal Quiet While Being Milked.

By the use of the device shown in the cut we succeeded in breaking one of our cows of the habit of kicking while being milked, says a writer in the homestead. We put a strap through each end of a strong stick and buckled this around the cow's leg just before milking.

DAIRY RECORDS ARE USEFUL

They Serve as Test on Milkers and Make Excellent Barometer of Cow's Condition.

(By J. BAILEY BRUCE.)

Accurate records of each cow's milk yield enables us to weed out the herd and retain only the money-makers.

They serve as a test on the milkers. If the cows are not milked clean the fact is discovered. Poor milking by hired help is discouraged and the drying off from imperfect milking reduced to a minimum.

The cow's daily record is an excellent barometer of her physical condition. Derangements are more quickly discovered and checked and better methods of feeding are encouraged.

Both owners and help are stimulated to increase the product and it educates them in the matter of dairy economy.

They induce better business in the management of the business. A piece where business methods have been too long ignored.

They serve as an excellent guide in selecting helpers that are to be raised to replace the cows we annually discard from the herd.

CONVENIENT TRUCK IN BARN

Easy of Construction and Will Lessen Dairyman's Labor to a Considerable Extent.

No dairyman can afford to ignore that which will lighten his labor in any way whatever. Be his stable ever so conveniently constructed, he has enough to do. Hence the importance of his considering the truck or car presented in the cut, for which we are indebted to an exchange. Made of good lumber, the only iron about it is the handle at each end by which to draw or push it, and the straps which are screwed against the ends, engage the ends of the axle outside the wheels and are screwed flat against the bottom of the truck.

The Silo for Dairymen.

This is the time of year when the dairymen or dairy farmer who owns a silo likes to talk about silage. Good silage comes on near being June pasture in January as any feed with which the dairymen are familiar. Its succulent or juicy nature especially fits it for stimulating the milk flow and keeping the cow in vigorous health. Probably the most important rule in the profitable dairy is to keep the cow's milk flowing as freely as possible after the flow has once been started by parturition or calf-birth. To do this demands right feeding and good care. Silage is also necessary to right feeding. Silage is a cheap feed to cut up and valuable to use. It is grown on the farm. This fact is of importance in this day of high-priced mill feeds.

Clean Milk.

A maker of certified milk, and head of a company which owns 800 cows, kept for this purpose at a sanitary milk producing plant, asserts that every dairymen can get clean milk in any barn if he takes proper care. This statement should prove interesting to those who lay so much stress on changes in the barn equipment, rather than upon the one all important item of care.

A Valuable Cow.

At the cattle sale of H. W. Woods of Easterville, Md., a black Galloway cow called Gentle Annie brought $2,500.

VALUE OF PURE-BRED SIRES

Prof. E. H. Fraser of Illinois Experiment Station Explains This Feature of Dairying.

The value of a good bull in the dairy herd is something that dairy farmers are now giving more attention to. Prof. E. H. Fraser of the Illinois experiment station has made this feature of farm dairying a study, and explains its benefits in this way: "If, for example, the good pure-bred sire improves the milking capacity of his daughters by only one and one-half pounds of milk at a milking, above the production of their dams, this would mean an increase of 300 pounds of milk for the ten months or 300 days during which the ordinary cows should give milk; they would also be much more persistent milkers; that is, would give milk for a longer time in the year, and would regain their flow of milk better after an unavoidable shortage of feed as in summer drought. Such daughters may certainly be credited on the average with 1,000 pounds more milk per year than their dams produced. At the low estimate of one dollar per 100 pounds this extra amount of milk would be worth $10 per year. The average cow is a good producer for at least six years, or until she gets eight years old. Each daughter having a pure-bred sire will, therefore, earn $60 more money in her lifetime because of the good qualities of her sire. It will on the average be four years after purchasing the sire before his first daughters will have finished their first lactation period and brought in the first extra $10. Eight dollars and twenty-three cents kept at compound interest for these four years at five per cent, will equal $10, so a daughter's improvement or increase of income the first year is worth $8.22 at the time her sire is purchased."

JERSEY COW'S GOOD RECORD

Pedro's Estella, Bred by Missouri Agricultural College, Produces Much Butter.

(By C. H. ECKLES.) This Jersey cow, Pedro's Estella 197245, as bred by the Missouri Agricultural college. Her record for Pedro's Estella.

12 months as a three-year-old is as follows: Milk, 11,068 pounds; fat in milk, 605 pounds.

The average per cent. of fat for the entire year was 5.476 pounds. Comparing the yield of butter on basis of 35 per cent. according to the rule of the Jersey Cattle club, this cow produced 712.12 pounds of butter in the 12 months.

Her weight was 880 pounds at the beginning of the test and increased to 900 pounds at the end of the year. The best previous authenticated year's record for an animal of this age is 518 pounds fat, which is exceeded 87.8 pounds by the record of Pedro's Estella.

The average amount of grain fed per day was about fourteen pounds, or a total of 8,110 pounds during the year, which consisted mostly of corn, oats, bran and oil meal.

Green Food for Cows.

As in the case of cows, swine also should be fed plenty of green food in order to keep their digestive tracts in the best condition. They should be supplied with plenty of pure, cold water and an abundance of shade and sanitary wallowing place.

SENATOR CARTER'S CAREER IS ENDED

SUCCUMBED TO LUNG TROUBLES AFTER COMBATTING IT FOR MONTHS.

SERVED HIS NATION MANY WAYS

Montana Sent Him as His First Representative—Was an Able Executive and Had Places on Many Commissions.

Washington.—Former United States Senator Thomas Henry Carter, of Montana, for many years a notable and picturesque character in national politics, once chairman of the Republican national committee, and since last year chairman of the American section of the international commission, died of infection of the lungs. He was 57 years old.

Sgt. Carter had a remarkable career. It extended over 22 years of congressional and official life at Washington. This embraced service as the first representative elected from Montana, two terms in the senate and executive positions as commissioner of the general land office; chairman of the Republican national committee in the second campaign of Benjamin Harrison, president of the board of United States commissioners for the Louisiana purchase exposition at St. Louis, and since last March chairman of the newly created "international joint commission, American section," especially charged with Canadian boundary matters.

He was an Ohioan by birth, an orphan by adoption and a Montanan long before that territory was admitted to statehood.

DIXIE JUMPED FROM THE WATER

Les Oldfield's Tire Bursts and Machine Crashes Into Crowd.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Ten persons are dead and fourteen seriously hurt as the result of an accident during the fifty-mile automobile race at the fair grounds when a racing car, driven by Lee Oldfield, a brother of Barney, leaped from the track and plunged into the throng of spectators. The racers had just completed the forty-third mile of the race, and De Palma was leading, Oldfield close behind. A tire blew up. His machine flew from the track, crashed through the fence and plunged into the mass of people on the other side.

The track was not in good condition. President Taft had gone over the track just before the fifty-mile event was called. The track had been sprinkled for his trip. Afterward De Palma and Burman refused to enter in the race because of the wet track.

AUTO KILLS TEN PERSONS

Accident to Motor Boat Dixie Brings Death to Boy.

Buffalo.—Dixie IV, Frederick K. Burnham's speedy hydroplane, which defended the Harmsworth cup of Huntington, L. I., and won the championship of the United States, lies a wreck on a narrow ridge of rock between the Niagara river and Erie canal.

The Dixie was leading in a race for the Great Lakes championship, and was speeding at the rate of 39 miles an hour when the accident occurred. Something went wrong with her steering gear. She careened for a moment, then headed directly for shore.

Harold Bell, a thirteen-year-old boy, sustained a fractured skull and will die.

PAYMASTER KILLED.

Highwaymen Failed to Capture the $5,000 in the Buggy.

Pittsburg, Pa.—A highwayman instantly killed David Steen, paymaster of the Steen Coal Co.

Steen, accompanied by his father, William J., owner of the mines, was driving to Roosevelt to pay off the miners. He had $5,000 in a bag under the seat of the buggy and both were well armed.

Father Identifies Suspect.

The first reports of the hold-up and murder had it that the highwaymen had succeeded in getting $5,000 in the possession of the Steens, but this is denied. Two Italians were arrested on suspicion in connection with the shooting and one was identified by the father as the man who shot his son.

CHICAGO WIND-SWEPT.

Windows Wrecked—Creft Damaged—Loss of Life Feared.

Chicago.—Great damage was done by a terrific wind and hail storm. The air seemed to be suddenly exhausted by some gigantic suction force, and the result was that the air within buildings burst out to fill the void, smashing numerous windows.

Awnings, chimneys and signs were torn from their fastenings and hurled through windows. Small craft in the harbors were torn from their moorings and dashed to splinters or swept out into the lake.

The storm came without warning with the exception of an electrical display and was followed by blinding rain. It was feared there was loss of life.

CORONER'S INQUEST

Into Shaker's Death May Do Away With Grand Jury Probe.

Kissimmee, Fla.—The coroner's inquest over the body of Sister Sadie L. Merchant, member of the Shaker colony, who was treated to euthanasia by Sister Elizabeth Sears and Bro. Egbert Gillette, will be held, and it is declared the inquest probably will do away with the necessity for an investigation by a grand jury.

At her urgent request Sister Sadie, who was in the last stages of tuberculosis, was given chloroform by her fellow Shakers.

We Import Cotton.

Washington.—The United States, which produces practically two-thirds of the world's cotton, brought from China during the last fiscal year more than 9,000,000 pounds of raw cotton, at a cost in that country of more than $1,000,000, and from India in 1910 about 5,500,000 pounds, at a valuation of more than $500,000.

Food and Drink Through a Pipe. Leadville, Col.—If no further difficulties are experienced by the rescuers at work in the Morning Star shaft the three miners imprisoned in the drift below will be released. An iron pipe was driven from the top of the cave to within 30 feet of the drift end food and hot coffee lowered to the men.

Twenty-one Hurt.

Brooklyn.—Twenty-one persons were injured when a Smith street trolley car crashed into the rear end of a Franklin avenue car. The injured were left lying about the street for some minutes. There was such a demonstration among the uninjured passengers that the police reserves were called out.

TRIBUTE TO MR. DIZNEY

At the regular faculty meeting, Monday night, the following resolutions respecting Mr. Disney were adopted:

Resolved, that the workers of Berea College have greatly enjoyed the fellowship and admired the ability, devotion and Christian spirit of Mr. Elijah F. Disney during the nine years of his service in Berea, and some of us remember him most pleasantly as a student in former days.

It is not a surprise to us that the people of the county of his former labors, Harlan, in taking new and decided steps for advancement and education, should look to him for leadership, and we congratulate him and them upon his entrance upon work in that county. Their gain is our loss. We shall follow him with our affection and God-speed. And we shall continue to cherish his friendship, and to profit by his example of simple and sincere piety and loving interest in all his fellow men.

Berea's long standing reputation as a place for serious minded students will be well maintained, and the young people who are here this fall show a decided loyalty to the highest ideals of conduct and character.

A BREATHITT PRODUCT

President Frost and Prof. Rigby, in returning from Breathitt County just before the opening of the term, brought an exceedingly interesting trophy in the shape of an enormous melon, weighing over sixty pounds, presented to them by Malcolm Holliday, Esq., of Jackson. The melon was on exhibition at the President's house for a number of days and finally eaten by the nearest neighbors to the President, supplying ample refreshment to about twenty people. It was not only remarkable for its size but for its quality, and the seeds, which have been carefully saved, give promise of good times for a thousand people another summer.

THE STUDENTS' MANUAL

The Students' Manual, familiar to all Bereans, comes out in a new edition somewhat more attractive and useful than ever before. It is mainly occupied by "general information" on such subjects as "permissions and excuses," "the College bell and use of time," "class work and conditions of promotion," "manual labor—conditions and pay," "business arrangements," "general conduct," "religion," "student organizations," "sports and recreation," "discipline," "vacations," and "leaving school—graduation."

The rules are so brief that we can quote them in full:

Four Definite Rules.

The one rule is that each student shall earnestly promote improvement in himself and others. This one rule is made more practical by being expanded under the following heads:

I. Attention to School Duties. (a) Attendance—Each student shall be punctually present for every lesson, work-period, or public exercise announced as required, including daily chapel exercises, College Sunday School, and Family Worship where he boards, and shall not leave town without permission except to return home at the end of terms. (b) Studious Habits—Students shall give the best part of each day to study, and refrain from disturbing fellow students in study hours.

II. Social Relations.—Young men and young women are prohibited on pain of immediate dismissal from meeting together in any private place. Young women must guard their reputation, and young men must guard their own reputations and that of their lady friends by observing the proprieties mentioned in the chapter on general conduct in this manual.

III. Forbidden Places.—(a) Places of ill-repute, liquor saloons, gambling rooms, etc., should such ever exist at Berea or be found elsewhere, must not be entered by students.

(b) Eating houses and places of amusement in Berea, not controlled by the College, must not be entered by students on pain of immediate dismissal.

The Institution provides for the recreation of its students, and ample accommodation for meals and refreshment, and cannot permit outside parties to solicit student patronage for gain.

IV. Forbidden Practices.—(a) Students may not engage in card-playing.

(b) Students may not burn gunpowder, nor keep weapons on their persons or in their rooms. Any weapons brought must be deposited with the student's advising officer.

(c) Students are prohibited on pain of immediate dismissal from using who falls in one district and moves on each year to another, where he is a stranger, to be fed out of the State's school funds again.

There is another type of teacher who takes his duties seriously. He regards his school district as his parish; his best is none too good for his people; he loves them and they love him. He, first of all, realizes that he has a responsibility toward the school and the state. He owes it to the state to make good citizens out of the boys and girls under his charge.

He teaches respect for law and order. He realizes how dependent the community is upon the efficiency, skill, and health of each individual for its prosperity and happiness. He has some valuable lessons to teach in sanitation and hygiene. Pitiful wells up in his breast every time he sees a one-armed man, not that the poor fellow has the one arm left, but that he does not have the two; the same feeling of sympathy moves him for the undeveloped man who works from daylight till dark without ever really doing his best through lack of skill and mental training. This wide awake teacher is a teacher or leader in the Sunday school. He gives of himself and all he knows unstintingly; but do his best, he cannot do all there is to do; so he finds himself reduced to his one last, supreme effort—which like the wine at the marriage feast is the best—he can encourage and inspire the older boys and girls of his school and community to go where opportunities are larger.

Not many years ago a humble teacher in a little white school house out on the western prairie, far away from any town, gave a talk at the close of school in which he said, after naming seven of his students, that they should go away to school the next fall where they could make strong and useful men and women out of themselves.

This teacher is not teaching today, but he has the reverence and love of at least the six, who, but for him might never have gone to college and graduated as they did.

A large number of boys and girls will go to college next month for their first time because of some wise teacher.

SYNOPSIS.

COUNT DI Rossetti, the Italian ambassador, is at dinner with diplomats when a messenger summons him to the entrance where a beautiful young woman has a ticket in made out in the name of Miss Isobel Thorne. Chief Campbell of the secret service, and Mr. Grimm, his head detective, are summoned. They are driving in a Washington car, and Grimm goes to the State hall for information. His attention is called to Miss Isobel Thorne, who with her companion, disappears. A short time later, Count Rodriguez, the Mexican ambassador, is found wounded. Grimm is assured Miss Thorne did it; he visits her, demanding knowledge of the affair, and arrests Pietro Petrovitch. Miss Thorne volunteers an old bomb, and after a discussion, is given a temporary reprieve. Fifty thousand dollars is stolen from the office of Senor Rodriguez, the minister from Venezuela, and while detectives are investigating the robbery, Miss Thorne appears again, having recovered from an old house in the suburbs. In her absence, Pietro Petrovitch shot Senor Alvarez and that he is Prince d'Abruzzi. Grimm figures in a mysterious jail delivery. He orders both Miss Thorne and d'Abruzzi to leave the country; they are sent to New York and placed on a steamer to return.

"Your paper?" he inquired courteously.

Mr. Grimm was still gazing dreamily out of the window.

"I beg pardon," insisted the newcomer pleasantly. He folded the paper once and replaced it on the table. One hand lingered for just the fraction of a moment above Mr. Grimm's coffee-cup.

Aroused by the remark, Mr. Grimm glanced around.

"Oh, thank you," he apologized hastily. "I didn't hear you at first. Thank you."

The new-comer nodded, smiled and passed on, taking a seat two or three tables down.

Apparently this trifling courtesy had broken the spell of reverie, for Mr. Grimm squared around to the table again, drew his coffee-cup toward him, and dropped in the single lump of sugar. He idly stirred it for a moment, as his eyes turned again toward the open window, then he lifted the tiny cup and emptied it.

Again he sat motionless for a long time, and thrice the new-comer, only a few feet away, glanced at him narrowly. And now, it seemed, a peculiar drowsiness was overtaking Mr. Grimm. Once he caught himself nodding and raised his head with a jerk. Then he noticed that the arc lights in the street were wobbling curiously, and he felt to wondering why that single flame sparkled at the apex of the capitol dome. Things around him grew hazy, vague, unreal, and then, as if realizing that something was the matter with him, he came to his feet. He took one step forward into the space between the tables, reeled, attempted to steady himself by holding on to a chair, then everything grew black about him, and he pitched forward on the floor. His face was dead white; his fingers moved a little, nervously, weakly, then they were still.

Several people rose at the sound of the falling body, and the new-comer hurried forward. His coat sleeve caught the empty demitasse, as he stooped, and swept it to the floor, where it was shattered. The head waiter and another came, poll-mell, and those diners who had risen came more slowly.

"What's the matter?" asked the head waiter anxiously.

Already the new-comer was supporting Mr. Grimm on his knee, and licking water in his face.

"Nothing serious, I fancy," he answered shortly. "It's subject to these little attacks."

"What are they? Who is he?"

The stranger tore at Mr. Grimm's collar until it came loose, then he fell to clutching the still hands.

"He is a Mr. Grimm, a government employee—I know him," he answered again. "I imagine it's nothing more serious than indigestion."

A little knot had gathered about them, with offers of assistance.

"Waiter, hadn't you better send for a physician?" some one suggested.

"I'm a physician," the stranger put in impatiently. "Have some one call a cab, and I'll see that he's taken home. It happens that we live in the same apartment house, just a few blocks from here."

Obedient to the crisply-spoken directions, a cab was called, and five minutes later Mr. Grimm, still incoherent, was lifted into it. The stranger took a seat beside him, the cabby touched his horse with a whip, and the vehicle fell into the endless, moving line.

CHAPTER XXI.

A Slip of Paper.

When the light of returning consciousness finally pierced the black lethargy that enshrouded him, Mr. Grimm's mind was a chaos of vagrant, absurd fantasies; then slowly, slowly, realization struggled back to its own, and he came to know things. First was the knowledge that he was lying flat on his back, on a couch, seated; then, that he was in the dark—an utter, abject darkness. And finally came an overwhelming sense of silence.

For a while he lay motionless, with not even the movement of an eye-lash to indicate consciousness, wrapped in a delicious languor. Gradually this passed and the feeble flutter of his heart grew into a steady, rhythmic beat. The keen brain was awakening; he was beginning to remember. What had happened? He knew only that in some manner a drug had been administered to him, a bitter dose of opium; that speechlessly, he had fought against it, that he had risen from the table in the restaurant, and that he had fallen. All the rest was blank.

With eyes still closed, and nervous hands inert at his sides he listened, the while he turned the situation over in speculative mood. The weller had administered the drug, of course, unless—unless it had been the courteous stranger who had replaced the newspaper on the table! That thought opened new fields of conjecture. Mr. Grimm had no recollection of ever having seen him before; and he had paid only the enforced attention of politeness to him. And why had the drug been administered? Vaguely, incoherently, Mr. Grimm imagined that in some way it had to do with the great internationals plot of war in which Miss Thorne was so delicate and vital an instrument.

Where was he? Conjecture stopped there. Evidently he was where the courteous gentlemen in the restaurant wanted him to be. A prisoner? Probably. In danger? Long, careful attention to detail work in the Secret Service had convinced Mr. Grimm that he was always in danger. That was one reason—and the best—why he had lain motionless, without so much as lifting a finger, since that first glimmer of consciousness had entered his brain. He was probably under scrutiny, even in the darkness, and for the present it was desirable to accommodate any chance watcher by remaining apparently unconscious.

And so for a long time he lay, listening. Was there another person in the room? Mr. Grimm's ears were keenly alive for the inadvertent shuffling of a foot; or the sound of breathing. Nothing. Even the night roar of the city was missing; the silence was absolute.

"That's the place, where the lights are—just ahead."

There was no mistaking that voice raised above the clomor of the engine. The car slackened speed, and Mr. Grimm dropped off and darted behind some convenient bushes. And the first thing he did there was to light a match, and read what was written on the slip of paper pinned to his coat. It was, simply:

"My Dear Mr. Grimm:

"By the time you read this the compact will have been signed, and your efforts to prevent it, splendid as they were, futile. It is a tribute to you that it was unanimously agreed that you must be accounted for at the time of the signing, hence the drugging in the restaurant; it was only an act of kindness that I should come here to see that all was well with you, and leave the door open behind me.

"Believe me when I say that you are one man in whom I have never been disappointed. Accept this as my farewell, for now I assume again the name and position rightfully mine. And know, too, that I shall always cherish the belief that you will remember me as

"Your friend,
"ISABEL THORNE."

"P. S. The prince and I left the steamer at Montauk Point, on a tug boat."

Mr. Grimm kissed the note twice, then burned it.

Appreciated the "Posie."

A pathetic incident occurred in the Wells' school in Pittsburg. One of the teachers brought a beautiful red rose to school, which, holding up before the scholars, she asked, "Now, children, how many of you know what this is?"

Nearly every little one shook his head, to indicate ignorance.

One small boy and a couple of little girls piped out, with great importance, "It's a posie, please, ma'am."

But no one had ever heard of a rose.

Most of the children had never seen one before.

The teacher put it in a glass of water to preserve it, and when school was dismissed each child was rendered supremely blissful by the gift of a tiny petal. As they fled out of the door, each little wifel clutched his treasure tightly in his small hand, while he murmured softly to himself the name, "Pitty wose, pitty wose."

Our Doctors.

"The late Count Tolstoi loathed physicians," said, at a dinner in Washington, a Russian diplomat.

"You remember how Tolstoi ridiculed physicians in 'War and Peace.' Well, I heard him ridicule three of them to their faces over a vegetarian dinner at Yassenevo Polyan."

"Physicians," he said, bitterly, looking up from a plate of lentils, "may be divided into two classes—the radicals, who kill you, and the conservatives, who let you die."

Expert Chefs on Vessels.

The term, "man of a sea cook" is no longer a title of reproach. The highly paid specialist who presides over the kitchens is a chef with an international reputation.

Prophet Ezekiel
a Watchman

Sunday School Lesson for Oct. 1, 1911

Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 8.
MEMORY VERSES—17-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Hear the word at my mouth, and give them warning from me."—Ezekiel 3:11.

TIME: Ezekiel was carried into exile B. C. 592, in the second deportation by Nebuchadnezzar from Jerusalem; when 10,000 were carried to Babylon with King Jehoiachin.

The prophecy of this lesson was written B. C. 592, five years later.

The first 24 chapters of Ezekiel, concerning the destruction of Jerusalem were written during the 4 years 602-605. B. C. 588 was the beginning of the last siege of Jerusalem which ended in its complete destruction.

PLACE: The Book of Ezekiel was written at Tel-abil (Cormill) on the river Chebar, one of the large irrigating canals of Babylonia, running across the plain between the Euphrates and the Tigris.

Ezekiel's name means "God strengthens." He was a priest, the son of Buzi, probably a family name. He was also one of the greatest of the prophets. He was probably 30 years old when he began to prophesy in B. C. 597, which would put the date of his birth in Josiah's reign, about the time Jeremiah began to prophesy, and five years before Josiah's great reformation and the finding of the book of the law.

He was a married man; and the sudden death of his wife was made by divine instruction a lesson to the people. He went on with his work "with a broken heart, but an unbroken purpose." He was a man of power and courage, holding his face as edamant against wrong, but attractive and persuasive in encouraging the people to prepare for their return from exile.

He was a man of great imagination, using simile, allegory, parables in action, symbols, symbolic actions. He saw visions, and dreamed dreams. He had spiritual experiences. But he was also the most practical of men. Ezekiel's model heroes were Noah, Job, Daniel. They all had lost their world, but "Noah inaugurated a new world; Job ended by seeing God in the whirlwind." Daniel did great things for his native country in his new country. Ezekiel was on exile, but in that exile was a mighty force for the renewal of his native land.

The God of Israel was an invisible God, without any representation to the senses. It was hard for the people to realize his existence and his presence. It is hard for us, but much harder for them. The temple and its ritual were his aid. God's works in nature were his manifestation. The visible effects of obedience, and disobedience, were revelations of God's nature. But times of trial and disaster at first hid his face from them as storm clouds bide the sun.

Hence in this dark period Ezekiel was taught to express God's presence, power, glory, goodness, providence, by apocalyptic symbols, i. e., by symbols which expressed ideas, but could not be put into any pictorial form which might lead to idolatry. The first chapter is a vision to these symbols, to make God real to the people; as to Job God made himself known in the whirlwind and the storm.

Nothing is more suitable than that the voice of God should come from the whirlwind. For air, wind, is one of the chosen symbols of God working through his holy spirit, as at Pentecost. It is invisible, as are the great natural forces of the earth.

The prophet was presented with a Hebrew roll, the form in which their books were made, and was bidden to eat it. The roll represented the word of God, his message to Israel. The prophet's eating the roll meant that he was to become so saturated with God's message that it would become a part of his very being. This gives us some guidance in forming a proper estimate of what is involved in inspiration. The prophet is to absorb into himself what is given him from above, and then give it out with his own lips and in his own language.

"It was in my mouth as honey for sweetmess," that is it was good in itself. But afterwards it became bitter, for it was a terrible message to give to his people, so that God made his face as edamant harder than flint, for all the house of Israel were impudent and hard-hearted.

Ezekiel welcomed the watchman on the walls. He went from trance to action, coming out of the trance, like Peter on the housetop when he went down to the messengers of Cornelius. "And I went in bitterness . . . of my spirit," sharing with God his righteous indignation against Israel, or the bitterness of having to deliver such an awful message as he uttered in the following chapters, to his friends and neighbors and countrymen. So that when he came to them, he remained there astonished, in a stupor of grief, seven days.

The watchman's duty is clearly set forth. He must warn the people of their danger, as by the voice of God. While his business was to warn, the results were with God and the free will he has given his children.

God warns us in love in various ways that we may not go heedlessly on to our ruin. He gives warnings to our bodies, by sicknesses, pains and weakness, against courses that will ruin the body, and to teach us to prepare for death. God gives warnings to the soul, by the pangs of conscience, by troubles and afflictions, to keep us from losing our souls. He warns our country, by discontent, internal commotions, by strikes, outbreaks, anarchies, war, against the oppressions, inequalities, luxury, irreligion, injustice, which will bring final ruin unless we turn from them.

Questions Answered

Berea, Friend of Working Students. Berea College, with its affiliated schools, is not a money-making institution. It requires certain fees, but it expends many thousands of dollars each year for the benefit of its students, giving highest advantages at lowest cost, and arranging for students to earn and save in every way.

OUR SCHOOL IS LIKE A FAMILY, with careful regulations to protect the character and reputation of the young people. Our students come from the best families and are earnest to do well and improve. For any who may be sick the College provides doctor and nurse without extra charge.

All except those with parents in Berea live in College buildings, and assist in work of boarding hall, farm and shop, receiving valuable training, and getting pay according to the value of their labor. Except in winter it is expected that all will have a chance to earn a part of their expenses. Write to the Secretary before coming to secure employment.

PERSONAL EXPENSES for clothing, laundry, postage, books, home, etc., very with different people. Berea favors plain clothing. Our climate is the best, but as students must attend classes regardless of the weather, warm wraps and underclothing, umbrellas and overcoats are necessary. The Co-operative Store furnishes books, toilet articles, work uniforms, umbrellas and other necessary articles at cost.

LIVING EXPENSES are really below cost. The College asks no rent for the fine buildings in which students live, charging only enough room rent to pay for cleaning, repairs, fuel, lights, and washing of bedding and
